Year in Focus

Owing to the ever-increasing number of policy issues in Pakistan requiring immediate attention and evidence-based input with an indigenous approach, IPS aims to build a strategic community of scholars, analysts, practitioners, journalists, and activists to proactively generate, participate in, and/or influence policy discourses. IPS also advanced its emphasis on outreach and networking through extensive collaborations with university faculties, international organizations, governance/policy consultants, ministries/authorities, media, and connecting with policy practitioners at all levels across Pakistan.

In addition to Pakistan Affairs, International Relations, and Faith & Society, the research work at IPS expanded its portfolio to two more major themes, i.e., Leadership and Governance, and Science and Technology. The five thematic areas were then distributed among three inhouse teams: PSL (Pakistan Affairs, Leadership & Governance, and Science & Technology); IRSA (International Relations, and Strategic Affairs); and FSL (Faith, Society and Law).

Some of the highlights of the year for IPS included:

i. A 'Grand National Dialogue' on 'Political System & Governance in Pakistan' was held in collaboration with Islamabad Policy Research Institute (IPRI), comprising three interactive sessions with intellectuals, practitioners, and students. A special session of IPS-NAC was also held under this theme. An extensive report based on these deliberations and in-house research comprising actionable recommendations for policymakers about governance issues in the country was presented and discussed in detail in a roundtable at IPRI.

ii. A pioneering work on 'Islamic Social Finance for Social Protection in Pakistan', based on year-long research, was another significant accomplishment. The study not only produced concrete recommendations for reforms but has also paved the way for policy dialogue to enhance the role and effectiveness of Islamic social finance institutions in enabling social protection of the vulnerable segments of the populace.

iii. The energy and power sector which drives the economic growth of the country has also remained a primary focus of the research as IPS undertook major projects with international partners, and the public and private sector, yielding comprehensive research reports, nationwide surveys, and viable policy recommendations to overcome prevalent challenges in the power sector of Pakistan.

iv. Another notable achievement of the year has been the increased collaboration of IPS and ICRC (International Committee of the Red Cross) in the shape of two 'National Media Workshops on Humanitarian Journalism for Islamic Periodicals,' in Muree and Karachi during the year.

v. IPS remained proactively involved in generating indigenous discourses on gender identity politics. The desk held multiple consultations with experts from the legal, medical, psychological, and social sectors, along with the gender-variant persons.

vi. Under the Science & Technology theme, IPS organized a two-day seminar on 'Artificial Intelligence (AI) in Defence Market; A Paradigm Shift in Military Strategy and National Security' as part of IDEAS 2022 and upheld the need for pragmatic technology-oriented research to make Pakistan a global AI hub. IPS also held capacity-building sessions to mitigate the risks of climate change disasters and strengthen the healthcare delivery system of Pakistan through the use of technology.

Apart from these, the continued Indian assault on Kashmiri identity, Israeli Actions in the Middle East, Afghanistan's transition, Pakistan's relations with African countries, and challenges to Pak-China relations and CPEC remained the areas of interest during the year.

On the request of various stakeholders, IPS also held deliberations and provided policy recommendations on issues such as GERD (Grand Ethiopian Renaissance Dam) conflict, Indus Water Treaty Arbitration, Indian politico-economic dominance in the Middle East and Gulf, and the revival of Pasni Fish Harbor.

Policy Perspectives, the flagship journal of IPS, became accessible through Science Open as well as indexed in the Directory of Open Access Journals (DOAJ) and recognized as a scientific journal by the Norwegian Register for Scientific Journals. The resumption of Nuqta-e-Nazar in the year was also well received by its niche readership and general IPS' audiences.

Under IPS LEAD – the learning, excellence and development program of the Institute, a diverse range of trainings were offered through its panel of experts with a special focus on young professionals and students. IPS also provided research support to several Ph.D., MPhil, MS, and LLM students and public officials undertaking staff courses as well as held sessions for university faculty members and research students across the country to enhance the role of academia in policy processes.

Under Promoting Indigenous Policy Research Initiative (PIPRI), IPS held frequent sessions of 'Brainstorming Research Ideas' for research students and their supervisors including sessions with AIOU and RAABTA by Idara IIm-o-Tehqeeq, alongside multiple exposure visits of delegations from several universities and institutes.

IPS Press - the publishing and bookselling arm of the Institute - continued with bringing forth multiple titles, including two new titles of Professor Khurshid Ahmad's contributions and one edited volume of research contributions on International Peacekeeping. It also contributed to generating some resources for IPS through the provision of providing editorial and publishing services for eight titles of KUBE Publishing, UK, and four titles of IIIT (via CPGS), and one for Riphah International University. IPS Press participated in multiple book fairs nationally.

The year's outreach efforts for the Institute resulted in multiple collaborations, agreements, and signings of MoUs with a diverse set of institutions.

For the first time IPS participated in the annual convention of Islamic Circle of North America (ICNA) in Baltimore, USA, and displayed its publications and introductory material for the visitors.

IPS signed seven MoUs including one with Al-Mustafa Int'l University, Iran

IPS also garnered substantial coverage in print, electronic, and online media spaces with a total of 533 media articles and press releases.

The live online streaming of 32 events managed to amass sizeable viewership whereas the Institute's social media platforms of Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn, YouTube, Instagram, and WhatsApp, alongside the conventional means of IPS newsletters, e-newsletters, and annual reports, remained instrumental in keeping the audience informed about all IPS announcements, initiatives, and ongoing activities.

The IPS Team started the year 2022-23 with 15 projects carried forward from the preceding year and added 78 projects further during it, out of which 46 were completed on time, and 35 are progressing as planned. The completion ratio, which was 80.39% in the previous year, stood out to be 87.1% this time around.

A total of 54 seminars and roundtable activities were held during the year. IPS LEAD had 13 events during the year. Moreover, the Institute was represented by its faculty in several academic events, extending and exchanging insights and institutional perspectives while several visits were also made during the year to different universities, institutions, seminars, and public and private sector organizations to increase the Institute's visibility and outreach, as well as to amplify the impact of its endeavors.
